Winter sports with a twist.

Alpaka trekking tour, Klausnerhof

Sledding in the sun- or moonlight.

If you enjoy sledding in the daytime, night sledding is likely to thrill you. The natural hill on the Hochwurzen is probably the biggest hit of all: totaling 7 km in length, one of the longest sled runs anywhere in the Alps.

Crazy about sledding?

Endless possibilities.

Skiing, cross-country skiing and wiener schnitzel still not enough for you? No problem, since the Schladming-Dachstein region has lots more to offer winter adventurers of all ages: from trekking tours with llamas and alpacas, to snow-tubing and fat-biking, as well as torchlight hikes through the dark mountain countryside.

If you'd prefer to sit down and snuggle under a blanket while discovering the region, a ride on a horse-drawn sleigh is definitely what the doctor ordered. Whereas, if you'd rather show off your graceful moves, the ice-skating rink awaits you.

As you can see: With so many different choices available, the one thing Schladming-Dachstein can't offer you is boredom.

Ski yoga, Hochwurzen

Ramsau am Dachstein

Winter Wander Land

If you have ever trudged through knee-deep snow, you know that winter hiking can be physically demanding at times. How fortunate, then, that the region maintains some 300 km of hiking paths in winter, allowing you to take magical, effortless walks through the snowy countryside. And with snowshoes on your feet, you have even more options than that available to you.
